Press Release July 1, 2014

Gloucester County Department of Information Technology announces a website upgrade scheduled to be released on June 30, 2014. The upgrade advances the county's website to the latest version of HTML and CSS. Advancing to current technology requires the use of up-to-date web browser versions to display the web pages correctly. It is recommended that you upgrade your web browser to the latest version or that you install another browser brand if you are using an old unsupported operating system on your PC.

The county's website now delivers a responsive design which means our web pages detect the size of the device's screen and adjusts the content for optimal display. For tablet and smart phone devices, the new responsive design should eliminate the need to scroll left or right as the content is moved to a single column and adjusts to the width of the display area.

We hope you take time to explore changes to the county's upgraded website. Our goal is to deliver improved usability for all visitors at a minimal cost.
