County seeks volunteers for local committees

There are several volunteer opportunities available for Gloucester residents interested in serving their community. Gloucester County is looking for citizens to serve on several local committees, as there are multiple vacancies and not enough people to fill them.

The Gloucester County Board of Supervisors regularly seeks citizens on these board-appointed groups that advise and assist the governing body with many aspects of County government.

Currently, there are openings for residents who reside in the York and Gloucester Point magisterial districts on the Utilities Advisory Committee. There are also openings for residents who reside in the Ware and Petsworth magisterial districts to serve on the Parks and Recreation Advisory Committee. An at-large citizen is also needed for this Committee.

If interested in becoming involved in local government and helping to serve the community, consider submitting your information to the Gloucester County Volunteer Board Bank, which provides members of the board of supervisors with the names and background information of interested citizens. To do so, visit www.gloucesterva.info (click on Board of Supervisors / Boards and Commissions); or call the County's Community Engagement and Public Information office at 804-693-5730.
